ABC EDUCATE ME SES PROGRAM

There is a refreshing, new and innovative company in the arena of education, and their name is ABC Educate Me. This company has the refreshing view that the main idea behind educational companies is actually educating the children and not emptying the wallets of the working class parents or their school districts. All of us have heard of the No Child Left Behind Act, an initiative put in the forefront of educational achievement spearheaded by George W. Bush, but many of us have no idea what it does for helping our children achieve academic excellence. The program attempts to even the playing field for the children in economically disadvantaged schools that are not achieving educational progress or benchmarks set by national standards. This act allows the parents of students in those schools to choose an outside vendor to provide educational enhancement, usually in the form of tutoring, to the students that qualify (qualified student are children that are on the free and reduced lunch program). The government will pay for the service to help students achieve, however, they have a set amount of funds per child which depends on the school district. The parent has a choice of several companies to provide service and initiates a contract with one company to provide the service. The majority of these companies conclude services, usually in a few weeks. The parents then have a choice to end the service or find a way to continue the sessions with their own resources, the company wants you to realize that these parents already have a difficult time financially. Unfortunately, this leaves the children with great temporary tutorial services, but what about the rest of the year? There are set requirements that all companies must meet. They give an assessment, learning plan, tutorial services and an exit exam. An alternative method of educating these children is being introduced by a company called ABC Educate Me. The company utilizes a computer based tutorial program developed by EDUSS. EDUSS (educational software system) has developed an educational tutorial software that will systematically determine where the gaps of learning in the past have occurred. Since this software helps both parents and teachers, the company decided to label this new innovative software as an Intergraded Multi-dimensional Teaching Assistant (IMTA). After it determines where the gaps of learning have occurred, the software will take every student back as far as it needs and then will teach them each topic back to their grade level. The subjects covered are Math and English. The company has already announced that future subjects are currently being developed. After the assessment, a learning plan is generated and shared with both the parent and teacher to ensure success. A correct starting point is established to guarantee that the student will understand the work and will progress forward. ABC Educate Me monitors each student and can print and even email all results to the parents and teachers informing them of that students progression. The really spectacular difference this company offers is after completion of the contracted tutoring time, ABC Educate Me will send the student a computer with the educational system home. This will give them unlimited tutorial service for the rest of the year at no additional cost to the parents, they will even give them internet access to monitor the student and access to the call center for any problems that may arise. A phonics program by Eduss is also included to insure the student has the tools needed to read and sound out words to solidify their educational growth. Finally, there exists a company that shows that education is important and is willing "to do what it takes" to ensure that student achievement comes first. The President and CEO of ABC Educate Me is Pierre Denize. He is also the mastermind of this company's conceptual design, and there is no doubt that this innovator is in the forefront of educational tutorial companies. Parents have the choice to select this company. Parents should contact their children's school as soon as school starts because the sign up time is short and it would be a shame to let the help that their children need go on unused. So when you call or visit you children's school, select ABC Educate Me as your SES (supplemental educational service) provider to give you and your children the help needed for the whole school year instead of a few of weeks.
